Fit Passport

ONE BODY · ONE FIT IDENTITY · ANY STORE

Carnegie Mellon University

A medium is a guess.

Every brand sizes differently, so shoppers guess. Fit Passport learns your size from clothes that already fit you, and helps you choose a size across stores, with clear reasons.

Xiangchen Kong · Alyssa Qi · Jenny Cao · Nicolas Wang

fitpassport.fit

01 WHY IT MATTERS

24.5%[1]

of US online sales were returned in 2024: $362 billion of merchandise.

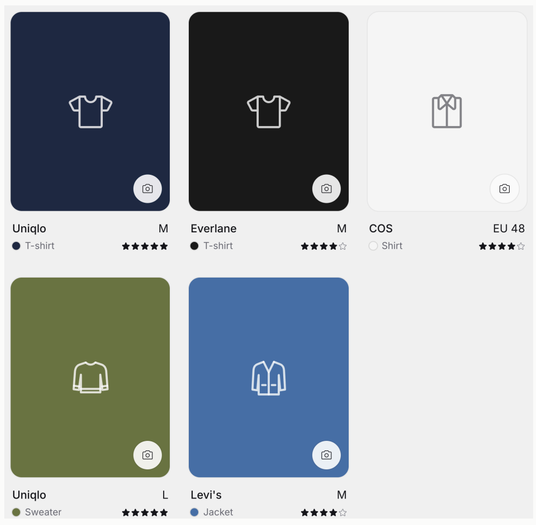

#1[2]

Size and fit is the most-cited reason online apparel is returned: 53% of US apparel brands and retailers in Coresight's survey.

34%[3]

of apparel shoppers ordered several sizes in the past year to keep one and send the rest back.

02 HOW IT WORKS

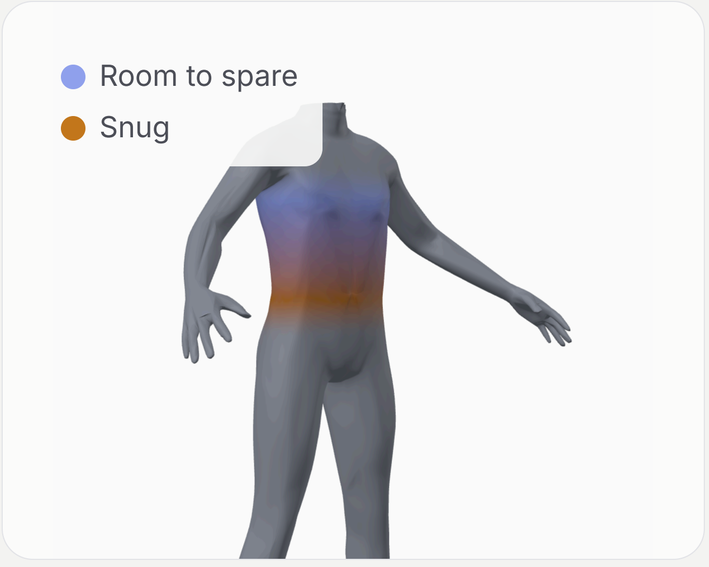

1 Your closet is the evidence

Add clothes that already fit. Each one teaches the engine how a brand runs on your body.

2 Check your fit while you shop

The Chrome extension reads the size chart in your browser. Only the product is sent, never the page.

3 Your size, and why

Every pick lists its evidence. A 3D fit view based on your measurements shows where it is tight or roomy.

03 WHY IT IS DIFFERENT, AND WHERE IT STANDS

Honest by construction

Explained: every size lists the signals behind it

A chart it could not read is marked estimated

Private: your precise measurements are never shared with other users

Built and live

Live at fitpassport.fit; extension on the Chrome Web Store

US, EU and UK sizes, and Chinese size codes

A 3D fit view based on your measurements

Next HYPOTHESES

20–25 shopper interviews, behaviour first

Will shoppers build a fit profile?

Will they come back to check their next purchase?

1. Appriss Retail & Deloitte, 2024 Consumer Returns in the Retail Industry: return rate from online sales 24.52% ($362.16B), all categories, US. 2. Coresight Research, The True Cost of Apparel Returns (Apr 2023): survey of 100 decision-makers at US apparel brands and retailers; size/fit cited by 53%; sponsored by 3DLOOK. 3. Tinuiti, 2024 Apparel Marketing Study: 34% of apparel shoppers ordered multiple sizes or variations in the past year (sample size not published). Product pictures are the live product with a made-up shopper. Store names are used for reference only; no affiliation is implied.

Try it
www.fitpassport.fit

Get the extension
Chrome Web Store: Fit Passport

Integrated Innovation Institute
Carnegie Mellon University Silicon Valley
fitpassporteam@gmail.com