Fit Passport

ONE BODY · ONE FIT IDENTITY · ANY STORE

Carnegie Mellon University

A medium is a guess.

Every brand sizes differently, so shoppers guess and pay for it in returns. Fit Passport learns your size from clothes that already fit you, and tells you what to buy at any store, with the reasons.

Xiangchen Kong · Alyssa Qi · Jenny Cao · Nicolas Wang

fitpassport.fit

01 WHY IT MATTERS

24.5%[1]

of US online sales were returned in 2024: $362 billion of merchandise.

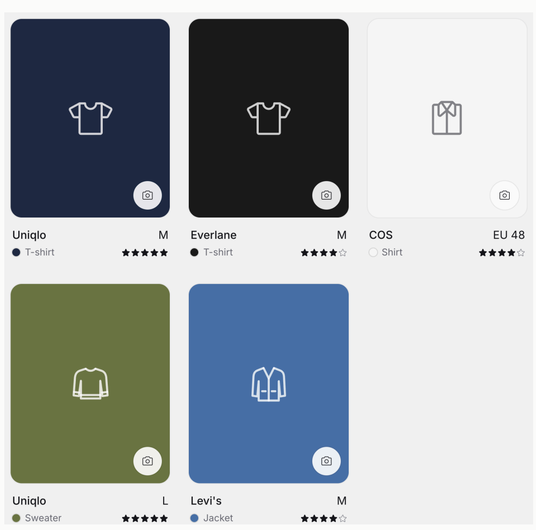

#1[2]

Size and fit is the top reason online apparel comes back, named by 53% of US brands and retailers surveyed.

34%[3]

of apparel shoppers ordered several sizes in the past year to keep one and send the rest back.

02 HOW IT WORKS

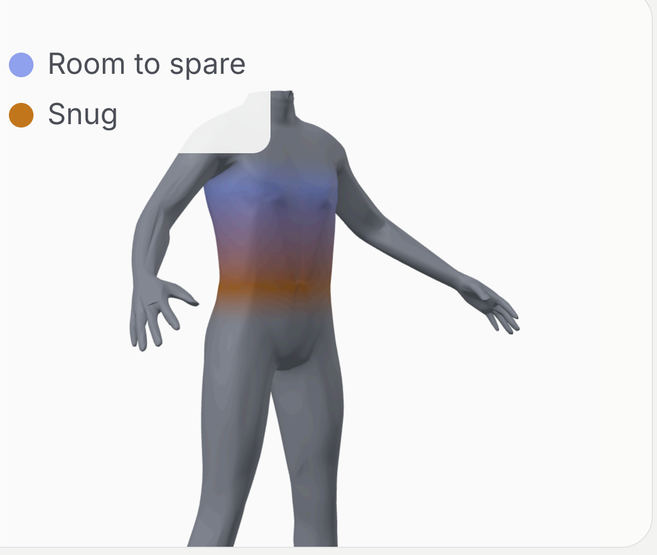

1 Your closet is the evidence

Add clothes that already fit. Each one teaches the engine how a brand runs on your body.

2 One click on any product page

The Chrome extension reads the size chart in your browser. Only the product is sent, never the page.

3 Your size, and why

Every pick lists its evidence. A 3D body fitted to your numbers shows where it is tight or roomy.

03 WHY IT IS DIFFERENT, AND WHERE IT STANDS

Honest by construction

Explained: every size lists the signals behind it

A chart it could not read is marked estimated

Private: precise measurements never leave your account

Learns from every keep, return and exchange you record

Built and live

Live at fitpassport.fit; extension on the Chrome Web Store

US, EU and UK sizes, and Chinese size codes

103 garment types; 358 shop category names recognised

3D body fitted to your girths within 1 cm in tests

Next HYPOTHESES

20–25 shopper interviews, behaviour first

Pass or fail written in advance: if sizing is only a mild annoyance, we pivot to the retailer-facing engine

Free core, Premium about $4–7 a month, affiliate commission

1. Appriss Retail & Deloitte, 2024 Consumer Returns in the Retail Industry: return rate from online sales 24.52% ($362.16B), all categories, US. 2. Coresight Research, The True Cost of Apparel Returns (Apr 2023): survey of 100 decision-makers at US apparel brands and retailers; size/fit cited by 53%; sponsored by 3DLOOK. 3. Tinuiti, 2024 Apparel Marketing Study: 34% of apparel shoppers ordered multiple sizes or variations in the past year (sample size not published). Product pictures are the live product with a made-up shopper. Store names are used for reference only; no affiliation is implied.

Try it
www.fitpassport.fit

Get the extension
Chrome Web Store: Fit Passport

Integrated Innovation Institute
Carnegie Mellon University Silicon Valley
fitpassporteam@gmail.com